Bryn Wiley

Senior Vice President,
Global Human Resources

BIOGRAPHY

Bryn Wiley serves as Senior Vice President for Molex's Global Human Resources capability and a member of the Global Leadership Team.

In his role, Bryn is responsible for Molex's Human Resources strategy and helping to guide internal culture. With his leadership, HR is focused on developing contribution-motivated talent across Molex and engaging with supervisors at all levels on their responsibilities within a Principle Based Management framework. Using guidance from Molex's Stewardship philosophy, Bryn and his team are partnering with business leaders to create a more diverse and inclusive culture while improving the employee experience for all of Molex.

Bryn began his career working with a large American staffing firm before joining Koch Industries as a recruiter in 1995. Working from Wichita, Kansas, Bryn would serve with the then Koch Petroleum Group before accepting a position as HR leader for Koch Supply & Trading, where he was responsible for a global team in the Americas, Europe, and Asia. Bryn accepted his current role at Molex in 2014 shortly after the company's acquisition by Koch.

Bryn received a BA from the University of Kansas with an emphasis in Personnel Administration. He and his wife live in Naperville, Illinois, and have two adult children.
